

WANTED: board member

In a small company, an owner often wears many hats: manager, Board of Directors and owner. But as the business grows, so does the need to bring in an experienced team to help the company to expand with a definite purpose and direction.

That's where a formal board of directors comes in.

Are you ready to create the structure that will support and guide your company?

If your business is ready to build its board, it's important to include someone with a different perspective than those in the company. If you're looking for a business resource who you can confide in, trust and rely upon for unvarnished advice and who will remain true to serving the needs of the company, you need an experienced outsider.

Operating Experience. Ownership Experience.
Partnership Experience. Objective, Insightful.

An experienced board member in for-profit and not-for-profit companies, Cliff Allen of Allen Business Enterprises, LLC, brings a broad range of experiences and perspectives to any situation and can be a key contributor on your Board of Directors.

Call Cliff Allen for an initial discussion.
